Chamberlain Weathers Storm

Britain's Harassed Government Saved by Margin of 81 Votes

Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain, who late yesterday emerged by a narrow margin from a two-day bitter storm of criticism in the British house of commons...

BRITAIN, May 8.—Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain remained the master of Britain's war government by the narrow margin of 81 votes tonight after beating off for the moment the thunder of criticism which in two days of historic house of commons debate had threatened his ministry for its surrender in central and southern Norway...

Some political observers speculated on whether the 71-year-old prime minister, chastened by the unexpectedly large opposition vote, might follow the example of the former premier of France, Edouard Daladier, and resign. There was nothing, however, to confirm any such intention.

Chamberlain's position was defended, however, by the 134 supporters, who with those voting in opposition, made a majority of the 615 members.

Some political observers speculated on whether the 71-year-old prime minister, chastened by the unexpectedly large opposition vote, might follow the example of the former premier of France, Edouard Daladier, and resign.

Men who had hammered at the government for two days took the vote as a victory rather than as a defeat, jubilantly they sang "Rule Britannia" as they left the chamber.

Should the men who led Britain to Munich and then to war to destroy "Hitlerism," actually go to the aid of the man who made the error would be Churchill or Foreign Secretary Lord Halifax, possibly the first head of government of all parties.

One possibility, however, was that Chamberlain might announce a new national government including all parties, inviting labor and liberals to take part in the government.

The labor party convention on Monday may decide to reverse its decision not to participate in the government.

It was evidence the opposition that Chamberlain's name was not mentioned in the 27-hour tumult—at least to reconstruct the actual history of the hour.

It was John Simon, chancellor of the exchequer, who said Chamberlain was not mentioned in the 27-hour tumult—at least to reconstruct the actual history of the hour.

Martial Law in Turkey

NEW YORK, May 9 (Thursday) (AP)—The official German radio said in a broadcast intercepted by CBS early today that martial law had been declared in Turkey.

The Berlin announcer, giving a news broadcast in English, said: "Turkey has proclaimed martial law."

No other reference to the Turkish situation was made.

BUDAPEST, May 9 (Thursday)—It was authoritatively reported early today that a Yugoslav military mission would leave soon for Moscow to explore the possibility of a military alliance.

Balkan diplomatic quarters were quick to detect in the new development the possibility of allied Soviet-Russian cooperation in southeastern Europe where the British and French are trying to weld a defensive alliance against the Rome-Berlin axis.

It was said reliably that the mission from Belgrade, headed by General Vukobratovic, in the name of the Yugoslav national defense, would follow up trade and "political" talks already in progress or impending by discussing military matters with Russian officials.

Authoritative sources in Belgrade said this disclosure shortly after it was reported in diplomatic quarters that Britain and France were of the opinion that the British and French are trying to weld a defensive alliance against the Rome-Berlin axis.

CIRCUS LIONS SCARE 'DEATH DIVE' QUEEN

NEW YORK, May 8 (AP)—Brown-haired Jennie Rooney, mother of a 24-year-old son, has discovered how to stay young—she doesn't die twice a day at the circus.

Working with her husband, Ed, 42 feet above the arena, she dives toward the audience from a trapeze. She is within four and a half feet of the floor when a strap around her ankle stops her plunge.

You have to stay young to do this, she explains. "If you don't, you don't do those stunts a second time. Not thrilling?"

"It's no more thrilling than riding down a fast elevator," she said in a dressing-room interview. "I had seen her do the act without a safety net. I decided to stick to elevators."

Mrs. Rooney is just five feet tall and weighs 112 pounds and doesn't look much older than her son's 24. She has been with circuses since she was seven, and has done about everything there is to do—barbecue riding, balancing acts, trapeze work, high wire work and tumbling.

"I'm not doing this circus job because it's really not my job," she says. "I began to silver and shake, and the animals seem to sense that. I'm afraid I'll never again see wild animals as long as I can do my dive. Just heaven."

"The best I can do for you," she explains, "is aerobic tumbling and balancing. Open your eyes and you'll find that it doesn't matter much whether you perform in the air, on the ground, or on a horse."

She said she couldn't work without her husband.

"He knows the problems I face, and he knows just how to handle the rope smoothly."

The Rooney's didn't need to be reminded to talk about their son, John. A graduate of Yale university, he is a dentist at Fond du Lac, Wis.

"I never liked circus life, and we never tried to make him like it," she said. "We encouraged him to do whatever he wanted to do."

She said she and her husband wouldn't be happy anywhere but in the circus. A graduate of Yale university, she has been with circuses ever since he was 12. At the time they met, he was barbecue riding, but he took up aerial work or diving with her mother. They have a home in Sarasota, Fla., where they spend five months of the year.

We always thought trapeze artists jumped off houses and awnings on shoulders when they weren't appearing with circuses.

Not the Rooney's—they fish and go off and let him.

Coming at you! That's Jennie Rooney, up there near the rear of Madison Square Garden lights, starting her "death dive."

THIRD-TERMS STOP OPPONENTS

Renomination Virtually Assured If FDR Chooses to Run

By RICHARD L. THURNIKER
WASHINGTON, May 8 (AP)—Unless President Roosevelt says "no," he is likely to be renominated for a third term by the Republican party, according to a survey of the first ballot and perhaps by acclamation—most seem probable.

As the new delegates view the situation, the opposition offered by the candidacy of Vice President Garner, crumpled this week. They set only Postmaster General E.A. Tamm as a possible open anti-third-term candidate, and they expect no fight from him.

The third-termers have played their cards with a skill of which few thought them possessed. They realized early that the strategy was to obtain Mr. Roosevelt's consent to run again by setting the opposition in a party-wrecking convention battle.

By negotiation with party organization members and their state leaders, many of them eager for a third term by entering the president in the Wisconsin and Illinois primaries, and obtaining his majorities for the so, they are now awaiting only the word from Mr. Roosevelt, which says Mr. Roosevelt will or will not run.

The new delegates view that the Garner campaign is largely over, a rallying point for anti-third-termers arises from the "Texas compromise." This agreement this week gave the Texas delegation to the vice president but pledged it regular participation in any "stop Roosevelt" movement.

E. B. Gurney, co-chairman of the Garner campaign, declared that the situation was unchangeable. "We are ready for John Garner and against no one," he said.

But the third-termers say that Garner's Texas supporters, with his consent, decided it would be wiser not to continue standing in the third term steam roller path. The vice dealers in turn, thought it wise to make a compromise which would avoid a bruising fight for delegates in Texas—a fight which might have marked the party.

Another impelling reason for the compromise was that many present-day Texans were torn between traditional state loyalty to the Texas candidate and friendship for Garner on the one hand and opposition to the new deal and friendship for Mr. Roosevelt on the other. When anti-third-termers and anti-third-termers generally flocked to the Garner standard their embarrasment became acute.

CIO Not United

The week brought proof of something Washington has long suspected—the CIO unions and their leaders are hardly a unit behind John L. Lewis and his plucky efforts to form a third party in the Republican and Democratic nominees and platform points unsatisfactory. Nor are the three anti-third-termers in condemnation of Mr. Roosevelt and the third term.

The president of one of the big CIO unions, Emil Bue of the United Textile workers, called loudly for Mr. Roosevelt's reelection in opening the union's annual convention.

It was pointed out in labor circles that those who oppose this sort of party may be expected.

Young Harold E. Spencer, governor of Minnesota and keynote at the meeting of the Republican national convention, was taken to get ideas for his speech. Apparently, it was to be a speech against certain labor objectives but not methods. Call for economy, for non-unionism, for the union as a business enterprise, for the relief and farm program.

And Spencer said it all over the room and has virtually been heard by the "general." That, indeed, was the something new in political reaction.

50,000 DRIVERS LACK LICENSES

Idaho's Safety Director Suggests Action in Courts

BOISE, May 8 (AP)—There are 50,000 Idaho drivers with no operator's licenses, says the state safety director, Don Blanks, state safety director, reported today.

Blanks proposed that enforcement officers be made fully liable for the state police force. He said, however, the fact that the force be made liable would be liable to waste time reducing the driver's license fee.

"If all courts would agree to accept a $10 fine in every case of the driver's license, about a million would be in out of the state there would be."

If the kidneys are not working properly, the waste products will build up in the blood and cause various ailments such as high blood pressure, diabetes, and other serious conditions.

It is important to keep the kidneys healthy. One way to do this is by drinking plenty of water and eating a healthy diet. Another way is by taking a kidney supplement like Coca-Cola.

Stricken in Harness

Still in the harness—a scout in the New York Yankees—Fraser was stricken with a kidney ailment nearly a month ago, and about a week's rest in an operating hospital for amputation of his left leg hastened his demise.
