

IDAHOAN OPPOSES FIGHTING ABROAD

Senator Thomas Calls for Congress Session During Emergency

WASHINGTON, June 11 (AP)—Senator John Thomas (R-Idaho), in a speech on the senate floor, today called for a session of congress to remain in session at least as long as the present emergency lasts.

At the same time, he expressed his opposition to United States involvement in the present war by declaring "no one can see that would warrant our sending boys to Europe."

The Idaho senator said he was not unduly of campaign excitement, but he felt responsibility for the direction of the nation's foreign policy should be left to the president.

"That would be true regardless of the party or the political beliefs of the man who might be president," he explained.

Political Party
The senator commented "I fully realize the nation needs a presidential election and the importance of reelection campaigns which all representatives and senators are planning."

"I am not unduly of my personal conviction," he said, "but the welfare of the United States demands that our own personal desires and personal ambitions be secondary to the welfare of the country."

"The speech of the president last night at Charlottesville, Va., it must be evident to every American that the situation the country faces is very critical," he went on. "This is no time for hysteria and emotionalism. We must keep our heads and our feet on the ground and steps that would draw us into war. The day we enter war, the personal interests of every American citizen which make this country a democracy will disappear, perhaps never to return."

"No event can occur that would warrant our sending boys to Europe," he intoned.

"It is my understanding," Thomas continued, "that the majority leaders, in conference with the president, have set June 22 as the date for adjournment of congress."

The March session usually "adjournment should take place on June 22, no power on earth but the president could call it back. Under the constitution, the sole control over our foreign policy would remain in the hands of the president."

"The issue is not whether we do or do not fight, but the question whether we agree with his foreign policy. It is simply that the responsibility for the foreign policy of the United States in days like these is too much, under a democracy, for one man to have."

"That would be true," he emphasized, "regardless of the party and political beliefs of the man who might be president."

The minority has cooperated to the fullest extent in every preparedness measure adopted by the president. There has been no delay in carrying out the laws of the country. It is changing to reality that if we are to meet these new problems as a democracy must meet them, congress must be kept in continuous session."

"The duty of every senator who is loyal to his oath of office is to stay in Washington regardless of his personal concern or his political future. As far as I am concerned, I shall oppose in every way the adjournment of congress as long as the present emergency lasts."

Wooden Nickels Announced As Magic City Jubilee Feature

May, 1940 edition of Pacific Banker, which follows in part:

"Don't take any wooden nickel. The old saying was figuratively quoted in a cocked hat by the present coin display in the Union Bank & Trust company, Los Angeles, during National Coin Week, March 25 to April 1.

"Among many valuable old coins exhibited were various types of wooden nickels—nearly all of them worth more than metal coins of the same value. One type, issued during the Bank Holiday of 1933 by a small Washington city, today is worth 20 cents to 25 cents. They were recalled within a short time of issuance, but many are still in the hands of collectors.

"Wooden nickels are usually to be found in groups, to commemorate the anniversary of historical events, such as the founding of a town, city, county, state or nation. They are made of silver sold or gold plated coins. They are one and five cent denominations.

Mr. Gorman emphasized that the wooden nickels are redeemable at any time at face value if the holder so desires.

As a taking shape, plans call for presentation of the historical specimens on all three nights of the jubilee—July 3, 4 and 5—at the Lincoln stadium grounds throughout the night.

All persons will be permitted to see the exhibit for the event which will be held on the 50 year of statehood theme. Relinquishers are already in progress at the U.S. church recpeption hall at the corner of Fourth avenue east and Second street east. Numerous other jubilee events are planned including open-air music on midways, parades on each of celebration days, a queen ball on the night of July 4. A carnival will be operating in the downtown area, and band concerts, sports events, and various other contests will be staged, according to present plans, and additional events will be announced in the near future.

AIR CONDITIONED? YOU BET! (But It Isn't Always Practical)

Keeping cool during the hot summer months would be no trouble at all if you had no more to worry about than heat. . . BUT unfortunately, it isn't so easy for grown-ups. If you work in a down town store, when you shop down town on these real hot days if you simply stay at home, keeping cool in warm weather presents a real problem. . . BUT it is a problem that can easily be solved by the installation of a Shasta Air Conditioning unit.

(REMEMBER THE HEAT WAVE LAST JUNE)

We're not trying to scare you but we do want to remind you of the hot weather we had last June and of the hot weather that will come here. The articles below are excerpts taken from the Idaho Evening Times dated June 29th and 30th, 1939.

THRONGS JAM POOL AS MERCURY REACHES 100

Bathers thronged the municipal swimming pool today as hot weather held Twin Falls and south Idaho in a grip only slightly less uncomfortable this afternoon than yesterday's 100-degree heat.

The 100 mark Thursday afternoon was the high-point of the year here, although the mercury had hovered in the 90s for several days.

The torrid wave continued today but with slight easing, and the official reading at the bureau of entomology at 1:30 p. m. was 95 degrees.

Low temperature this morning, of first refresh show, stood one degree above the low of yesterday, being 84 above. The forecast calls for generally fair weather tonight, Saturday and Sunday with slightly cooler conditions tonight.

Other official readings today showed the temperature here at 12 noon to be 91 degrees.

Bill Powers, manager of the Harmon park municipal swimming pool, said that yesterday, during the 100 degree heat wave, the largest crowd of the season jammed the tank.

With the temperature threatening to reach the "high spots" again today he predicted that the crowd would be "just as large."

Mercury Hits 95 as Torrid Wave Strikes

With strictly summer temperatures being recorded in Twin Falls, local citizens were getting their first taste of "sweltering" this year.

Yesterday the temperature reached a high of 96 above and today at 1:35 p. m., the bureau of entomology thermometer stood at 95 above.

With every indication that before evening it might mount to the 100 degree mark.

Low official temperature yesterday was 44 degrees while low this morning was 85 degrees.

With the area getting its first taste of summer this
