Rumanian Crown Council Ponders Grave Problems

Royal Group Discusses New Troubles Following Dismemberment of Nation by Germany

Harrassed Rumanian crown council met in a secret, shotgun-guarded conference last night early Saturday on grave new problems in the wake of Germany's forced dismemberment of an embittered Balkan peace at Rumanian expense. In Germany's bigger game in the west, the Nazi air force meanwhile maintained throughout the dark hours its regular sleep-disturbing nightwatch patrol over London and the British Isles. Bombs were dropped on London's outskirts and the raiders were heard in 13 towns in England and one in Wales.

Except to say that their subject was Rumanian and important, the Rumanian council was mum as it ended its long session with King Carol at 2:30 a. m. (3:30 p. m. MST Friday). Only yesterday Rumania abruptly agreed to the German annexation of Transylvania to Hungary, accepting in turn a German guarantee of Rumania's territorial integrity. It also guaranteed that it will place Nazi troops opposite the restless Soviet army on an almost unbroken front of 1,000 miles from the Baltic to the Black sea.

Rumania lost her newest ally in an anti-Soviet conference at Vienna where German Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop and his ally, Italian Foreign Minister Galeazzo Ciano, laid down the "or else" ultimatum. Confronted with the threat of immediate attack by Germany, Hungary and possibly Bulgaria, and the fact that the Soviet army was encamped along the Rumanian frontier, the Rumanian council capitulated, adding more than 17,000 square miles additional territory. Previously it had agreed to send southern Dobruja to Bulgaria, and Rueda, by ultimatum had handed back to the Soviet army.

Germany's guarantee, authorized Nazi sources said, was "directed against everybody in general." They added that Germany and Italy took Moscow to the side and the Rumanians said their aspirations had been satisfied with the acquisition of Bessarabia, which was the wish of the former Czarist regime, and northern Bucovina in addition. The latest dismemberment agreement by which Rumania and Hungary will exchange populations following Soviet Rumanian troops to Bessarabia and northern Bucovina, and the new eastern frontier and threatening "grave consequences" if they are not complied with.

Meanwhile, Russia's Red army and navy began secret maneuvers, and the first amphibious battle in an undisclosed area and the army maneuvering in the western sector of military operations. Greece, wary of Italian intentions in neighboring countries, is nearly all of her reserve officers last night. Authoritative quarters here believe Greece would be attacked today's session of the Albanian parliament for some sign of Italy's intention toward her, and a bitter anti-Greek press campaign.

Convention Hears New Deal Assailed

Howard Hall, Murtaugh, Named to Head State Organization; Debates Figure

Featuring flashes of debate and requiring four ballots to elect Howard Hall of Murtaugh as president, the five-day biennial meeting of the Idaho Young Republican League moved to its climactic session at the Idaho Power auditorium in Twin Falls.

A stirring keynote address in which Gibson Condie, secretary to Congressman Henry C. Dworshak, lashed at the principles, conduct and adaptation of resolutions in a similar vein occupied a major portion of the session which attracted 150 Young Republicans to Twin Falls.

Howard Hall, the new official staff member of George H. Scattering, Caldwell, 31, was president. Elmer Walker, Kellogg, was second vice president. James W. Blaine, Boise, secretary. Tommy Melville, Kellogg, treasurer. Mrs. Thelma Wolf, Idaho Falls, assistant secretary. Mrs. Helen McConville, Caldwell, secretary.

Not a single dissenting vote was cast and unanimously on behalf of Howard Hill, Murtaugh, as president. The Democrats gave their state chairman and candidates a platform built on plank assailing taxation of the present Republican administration, urging relief for farmers and other taxpayers and the preservation of the Roosevelt national administration.

Losers Concede Superior Strategy on Part of Veteran Team

Struck by repeated challenges, a determined crew of veteran players last evening clinched their supremacy over the 20-30 club at softball by handing the younger team a 14 to 0 defeat at the old ball park. The victory (though) is the second within three days, as they Wednesday night defeated the 20-30 club 12 to 5. Although this eliminates the need for a third tie to decide the championship, a third game will probably be played next week "just for practice."

Life Changes Radically Beneath Surface in Nazi-Ruled Country

BY IRVING CASSIDY - BERLIN (Correspondent of the Associated Press)—Life in France, under German occupation, has fallen back almost a century.

Since the collapse under German arms of the third republic, which has lasted for 75 years, France has reverted to a condition which the 19th century, and knew the problems of economy.

On the surface, Paris and most of the occupied cities and towns look as they have always been. But beneath the surface, life has changed radically.

But beneath the surface, life has changed radically. Quarrels form for food, and one life is as precious as another. Cakes, milk, eggs, cheese and oil have all become scarce.

The war-time restrictions, providing three meal-less and three alcohol-free days a week, have been established. Gasoline is forbidden to private use.

The result has been a life of struggle. Some street vendors have been virtually deserted except for gray German cars and ancient vehicles.

The German administration is conducted behind the scenes. Civilian life has been modified by 150 laws. Troops are quartered all over the country.

On the surface, Paris and most of the occupied cities and towns look as they have always been. But beneath the surface, life has changed radically.

But beneath the surface, life has changed radically. Quarrels form for food, and one life is as precious as another. Cakes, milk, eggs, cheese and oil have all become scarce.

The war-time restrictions, providing three meal-less and three alcohol-free days a week, have been established. Gasoline is forbidden to private use.

The result has been a life of struggle. Some street vendors have been virtually deserted except for gray German cars and ancient vehicles.

DOVE HUNTING OPENS SEPT. 1

Will Be Prelude to Start of Seasons on Other South in Section

Although the south central Idaho hunting season opens at dawn Sunday, Sept. 1, only shooting of mourning doves will be in order, according to George G. Davis, conservation officer.

The law limit is 12 birds a day and only that limit will be allowed. With an increased season coming up for duck hunters, the dove season will provide an opportunity to get into the spirit of the outdoors for sportsmen.

Law restricts this year include those making hunting limit from sunrise to 10 p. m., rather than the 8 a. m. closing time of last year. Ducks are not to be in possession more than 20 days after close of the season.

Use of prohibited automobile, aircraft, motor boat or sail boat in hunting is prohibited. The use of shotguns, not larger than 10 gauge, are allowed.

FREIGHT RATE DISADVANTAGES. Could every grower and shipper in Idaho have heard the talk before an open meeting of the Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce yesterday by Carl DeLong, secretary of the Idaho public utilities commission...

Already the apple industry is virtually lost. Under present conditions peaches and prunes are proving unprofitable to growers. And unless freight rates are reduced, Mr. DeLong predicts that beans and possibly potatoes can no longer be grown in the large quantities now prevailing.

Following are several examples cited by the commission secretary as working a hardship on Idaho producers: 1) On the $35,000 paid out in freight for all of the 181,000 carloads of potatoes transported by the railroads in the United States annually...

2) While the average freight rate on potatoes from the United States is only 55c per hundred weight, it can be seen that the Idaho producers are up against with an average freight rate of 74c.

3) On a carload of lemons paying $562 to the grower, the freight rate is $142 from Los Angeles to the east coast, while at the same time the freight rate on a carload of onions, paying the Idaho grower only $30, was $138.

When Idaho farmers are confronted with the prospect of being unable to operate profitably unless the other producing sections of the state get a 10 cent reduction in the freight rate on potatoes alone... Mr. DeLong views the situation. It is high time that some concerted effort was made to get relief from such a condition.

USED CARS. Experts in the business are prophesying a possible shortage of "used cars." With business speeding up, it is figured, a lot more people are going to need such transportation, and can afford it.

Chapter 25 SPOT OF DETECTING

"You send three right to the magazine," she said. "I'll have the writers had agents to handle things for them."

"Good agents don't care to be bothered with pulp stories—there isn't enough money in them."

"You've sent these people other things? They know who you are?"

"Oh yes. I sent them a story every month or so."

"What becomes of it if they don't take it?"

"I receive return postage and they send it back. So then I try someone else."

"How long before they send it back—if they don't buy it?"

"A couple of weeks, more or less."

"Do you ever lose any?"

"Sometimes, I suppose. I've never had one lost. But I keep a copy, just in case."

"People are always asking questions like that, but maybe I would have begun to wonder, but they didn't come out to the subject so reluctantly if we hadn't reached the post office just then. She stamped her envelopes and stuck them in the chute without a second glance, but I was very suspicious that she kept her gaze riveted on the manila envelope while I hurriedly returned postage, addressed envelopes and sent the envelope."

"It's easy to look back now. You've had a break for me," I said as I turned Adam's car once more toward home.

"I'm only joking," she said, "but you charge to take the job on permanently?"

"I'm glad to help you while you're here," she said seriously. "But I couldn't take any pay."

"I was only joking," she said, "but a secretary—wouldn't that offend to do with one. When I graduate to the folks I'll send for you. You're good."

"I've had experience—I paid my way through a normal school as secretary to the head."

"Oh, I thought you had an income."

"Not enough. I would have had to break into my capital, and I have better use for that."

"She was abruptly silent then, in a way that discouraged pursuit of the subject, so I changed it to the recital of the plans the Pernants were making. That seemed a matter of complete indifference to her, she also listened politely, said vaguely, "Whatever they want to do, do it. She went off to her room to dress for dinner as soon as we reached the club."

Gerald Bradford was sprawled asleep on my studio couch. I stared down at him in the light of a public lounge? I reached down and shook him. He sat up with a muffled snore.

"A Complainant," I said, "do you have to be so rough?"

"If he'd been in your room last night, he'd have been comfortable. This one moved there for you," I said.

"I'm grinded. Maiden lady in defense of her modest couch. Frightfully sorry and all that. I came here in great disgust to say my piece—your own fault for being out. I say, don't tell me I'm wrong?"

"Raucously, I heard her clear out in the street."

"It's the weather," he said solemnly. "The first. Never thought I'd encounter a form of humor lower than my own. Now how would you like to run your own show, do you get ready for dinner?"

"I knew there was some reason for my being here! You're having dinner with me—you and Julia Pennant. Now don't you say no—the sign would be if you say yes. You realize I'm a dangerous sort of fellow for a maiden to be exposed to. I can't hardly know my own charms. But the point is, this is not a strictly social formation. I have a commission from the great Adam Drew himself."

"No commission?"

"No less. Now don't ask questions—you'll know all in good time. We there, you and Julia and I are going to have a pool of detection. And that is definitely my last word for now. Be ready in half an hour. You'll see with an important sign, he departed.

"And now we girls are going to take down our hair and have a good old gossip." Gerald announced as we all down to dinner this evening. Julia blushed so brightly that people at a neighboring table looked around with smiling sympathy. "You sound like a friend."

"In New York, I think she said. Her brother's child."

"That's that passes it! I told you I had a hunch," New York herself. Some of those terrible gangsters that have been over here for three months. I'd like to see you put those dear old folks—take it into their hands to be sure here for a while in June."

"No! And not so faint of the little toe, too. Tell me, was she a little dimpled dandy with golden curls? Oh, I must ask Felicia about her."

"No, Gerald, don't. The poor kid is lanky and her hair is like black string. And she wears glasses—she nearly blind. Felicia had her out at the beach one day—a happy little thing, about six. I talked to her, and she told me cheerfully that her Aunt Felicia was going to take her to Chicago the next day to see her new doctor who would make her eyes strong. Felicia told me privately that the Chicago doctor was a sort of last hope—they weren't counting too heavily on the results of the operation. And when they had done that, there was nothing he could do, for Felicia never mentioned the subject again and didn't show to bring it up. She brought the child back for a few days before she slipped her."

"So he in some danger," said—"No, Gerald, she's fine. You go too far. I'm able to think what you've been reading."

"You don't like it?" he demanded anxiously. "Well, if I can think up another, I rather fancy Felicia—she looks the type who might have found a rolling pin on the pate of the late lamented Mr. Birdwell, G-man or no G-man."

happened to him after he became captain of a boat borne off the San Pedro sea wall. The only disturbing thing about the boat was the Swedish dialect, which sets pretty thin in spots. (Carroll & Co., $2.50).

The Literary Goodnest

By JOHN SELBY

Some summer fiction for the late vacationist—

"When a glorification of the simple things comes out of the pen of Robert 'Thumbelings,' the result is likely to be a pretty nice novel. This is the case with 'The Record of the Garcia Family Odyssey'—from deep Mexico into California and back to Mexico, with nothing left but hope. It is wholly without the condensation some of the earlier volumes of the series when they write of them, and because the story is always told from the viewpoint of the Garcia, it is a strange power to show us our own life from the outside, not always happily, and with a certain amount of Eric in the background. 'Come Back to Erin' is not unlike 'Thumbelings' in style, and also, and while wholly not in feeling, it, too, is a family story ranging from Ireland to New York and back again, and with the explanations of the cold sort, somewhat heavily exercised with Irish wit and sentimentality. And it lacks the directness and sometimes terrifying power of Mirta Roberts' book. (Wentworth, $2.50).

Those who admired Merton Dickson's 'One Pair of Hands' which was his last, and his only, novel, will find some of the spirit in M. Dickson's first novel—'Fact to be published over here at last. It is another story of an English girl coming up in the period between the wars, and her husband, a noble of England in the 18th century's book has Ireland. (Harper, $2.50).

John T. Lister's thriller calls her 'Cobalt's Secret' a "richly homogenous novel," and allowing for a slightly out-of-plumb figure of speech, it is a good description. As a novel it is often a bit slow, but as a picture of southern Texas and the century ago it is excellent, full of human detail and accurate to the last syllable so far as this reader can judge. (Little, Brown, $2.50).

It's too bad there is no way to reproduce Wilbur Robertson's picture here, because anyone who had seen much to the films would recognize it at once, and that's all right. Mr. Robertson has written his first novel, but it is by no means his first writing. It's about a Soviet with a past, and some things which

The American people lived in the event more all cars for new and used automobiles in 1933 than in the year 1932.

They were both, George Hanzen and Howard Hepper, each 15, were distilled by Jules Verne's "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea," and decided to rig up something that would permit them to walk around under water.

They located a discarded hot water tank. The owner wanted $2 but they made a dealer to clean up his business. While they have not yet ventured more than 15 feet below the surface, they have recovered several fish outfits.

The gadget is practically fool proof. Fuel air bubbles out through the open bottom. If anything should go wrong, all the water has to be stuck out and rise to surface.

The biggest thrill young Hanzen had had so far came while walking around in Utah lake.

"These big eels," he related, "peering around your head, keeping you through the portable. Of course they're much more afraid of you than you are of them, but just the same it's a funny sensation to see one of those big fellows staring you the one over."

Successful in the pool, the boys moved to nearby lakes and their fun began. They began, also, to get cash business. While they have not yet ventured more than 15 feet below the surface, they have recovered several fish outfits.

The biggest thrill young Hanzen had had so far came while walking around in Utah lake.

"These big eels," he related, "peering around your head, keeping you through the portable. Of course they're much more afraid of you than you are of them, but just the same it's a funny sensation to see one of those big fellows staring you the one over."

Successful in the pool, the boys moved to nearby lakes and their fun began. They began, also, to get cash business. While they have not yet ventured more than 15 feet below the surface, they have recovered several fish outfits.

The gadget is practically fool proof. Fuel air bubbles out through the open bottom. If anything should go wrong, all the water has to be stuck out and rise to surface.

WILLIE DEMANDS REVISION OF F.D.R.

G. O. P. Nominee Calls for President's Stand on Industrial Draft

RUSHVILLE, Ind., Aug. 30 (AP)—Willie L. Wilkie, again demanding President Roosevelt's stand on industrial draft, said today that he was the chief executive's "clear choice" for his position on important pending bills.

The Republican presidential nominee was commenting on a concern over the president's refusal to announce his views on the Overton-Russell amendment to the anti-appropriation bill. This amendment would permit government operation of plants necessary for the production of munitions of war and navy could not reach agreements with their owners. Willie first called for Roosevelt's stand on the amendment yesterday to any where blood on it.

The president told reporters at Hyde Park N. Y., today an attempt was being made to invite him in a political discussion. He said that they remembered an old rule in 1923 and whether the executive committee on legislative amendments or bills pending in congress.

"If my memory serves me correctly," Wilkie said in a statement after the party, "the president mentioned many times on pending legislation."

Wilkie said the chief executive and his running mate, Henry A. Wallace, were "one hundred percent wrong in implying that the Republican party is the party of appeasement."

Wallace notified of his nomination for vice president on the Democratic ticket last night at Des Moines, Ia., termed the Republicans the "party of appeasement."

PUBLIC WILL TRY CATTLE JUDGING

Fair Board and Breeders Plan Unusual Event as Part of Program

Plans to stage a public dairy cattle judging contest on each of four breeds of dairy cattle exhibited at the Twin Falls county fair have been perfected by fair board members and prominent breeders as an educational phase of the county fair at the fairgrounds in Piler.

According to sponsoring dairymen, anyone is eligible to try his or her hand at judging cattle during the last two days of the fair, Sept. 19 and 20. Upon completion of the judging contest, explanations will be offered of outstanding points as well as faults by experts on the various breeds.

With Sam Kayler, Twin Falls Jersey breeder, as chairman, other dairymen sponsoring the contest are Louis Tencknick, Twin Falls, Holstein; Charles Hart, Buld, milkings; Shortborts, and Frank Stockwell, Buld, Guernseys.

The contest will be printed and passed out to the public attending this judging contest, and each person attending will be permitted to place a class of dairy cattle according to his own opinion. This will be done after the person in charge of each breed checks over the chart or animal carefully, explaining to the public the characteristics and points of the outstanding animal in the particular class of dairy breed.

As the event is strictly educational, no awards will be offered and judging is open to everyone, including 4-H and Future Farmers members. Pointing to importance of the contest, the dairymen said that it is planned to continue this project from year to year.

The contest will start promptly at 10:30 a. m., and close promptly at 12 noon, allowing 45 minutes for each breed. The contest will start on September 12 at 10:30 a. m. Judging will start on the Jersey class, with the Kayler breed, at 11:15 a. m. Judging will start on the Guernsey class with Mr. Southwick in charge, and the Holstein breed, Mr. Tencknick in charge, and the milkings class with Mr. Hart in charge. No more than five head will be selected from each breed, which will constitute the class to be judged.

F.D.R. REFUSES TO ANSWER WILLKIE

President Sees Attempt to Snare Him in Political Discussion

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Aug. 30 (AP)—Declining what he termed an attempt to get him into a political discussion, President Roosevelt rejected today Wendell L. Wilkie's demand that he state his position on appointment of private planters for defense purposes.

The Republican presidential nominee, in a statement at Hyde Park, today refused to answer a "political diatribe" in an amendment to the conscription bill which under certain conditions would enable government to take over industrial establishments and make defense materials. He called upon the president to say whether he was for or against the amendment.

But when reporters sought an answer to the president's press conference, Mr. Roosevelt cited what he said was a 1933 rule that the chief executive does not comment on matters pending in congress.

"I am sure he does," a reporter remarked, but there the discussion ended.

The president also declined to say whether he concurred in Secretary Walker's assertion that the Republican party was a "political organization in the United States today."

The speech in which Wilkie accepted the Democratic House nomination at Des Moines, Ia., last night, Mr. Roosevelt said, speaks excellently for itself.

In a congratulatory telegram, Mr. Roosevelt told his running mate that "you have made a glorious start" in a "grand speech splendidly before an appreciative nation."

Harry L. Hopkins, retiring secretary of commerce who was a strong term leader at the Democratic convention, attacked at the Saturday term last night. But the president volunteered word that Hopkins merely said "a good job" and had not come on a political mission.
