DEATH FACTOR IN WISCONSIN VOTE

Candidate at Today's Election, Dr. Glenn Frank, Dies in Crash

MILWAUKEE, Sept. 16 (AP)—Scrambled hours and a later ticket traditionally in Wisconsin politics today awaited voters in Tuesday's primary election to choose candidates on a three-party ballot.

The death Sunday night in an automobile accident of Dr. Glenn Frank, nationally known Republican who sought his party's U. S. senatorial nomination, added confusion to the election picture.

Dr. Frank was killed and his only son, Glenn, Jr., 21, suffered fatal injuries when their automobile skidded off the highway while the candidate was en route to Green Bay.

Estimates of the total vote ranged upward to 600,000.

Polls close at 6 p. m. (CST) in some rural areas and at 5 p. m. in metropolitan districts.

The new deal, La Follette and the Republican administration of Governor Julius P. Heil furnished the main targets for a large field of candidates running under the Republican, Democratic and Progressive banners.

Heil was opposed for the Republican nomination by James K. Robinson, of Milwaukee, less prominently known outside.

Five candidates aspired to the Progressive nomination and four Democratic candidates.

Ten candidates sought the opportunity to face Senator La Follette, Jr., unopposed for re-nomination on the Progressive ticket in November.

Four of them—two backed by a "right in movement"—were on the Democratic side, and six ran under the Republican banner.

Frank's name will appear on the ballot, already printed. State officials expressed the unofficial opinion that should his name draw the most votes the task of naming the Republican senatorial nominee would fall upon the party's state central committee.

Crash Victim

GLENN FRANK, former president of the University of Wisconsin, chairman of the Republican party committee and candidate for the party's nomination for U. S. senator, was killed and his 21-year-old son suffered fatal injuries Sunday night in an automobile accident near Green Bay, Wis.

FIGHT CONTINUES ON LIQUOR ISSUE

Supreme Court Asked to Prevent Referendum Ballot

BOISE, Sept. 16 (AP)—Attorneys for two Idaho merchants, who have challenged constitutionality of a proposed local option liquor control act today asked the Idaho supreme court for a temporary restraining order to prevent printing the measure on the general election ballot.

Action on the motion was deferred until 2 p. m. tomorrow.

W. E. Henke and Chester Hancock are plaintiffs in the suit, which was dismissed in Ada county district court and was promptly appealed to the supreme court.

Named as defendants are Otto P. Peterson, Ada county auditor, and the three Ada county commissioners. Henke and Hancock ask that the courts enjoin the officials from having the county liquor control measure printed on the ballot and clause among other things, that under the state constitution regulation of liquor rests solely with the legislature.

Printing of the proposed act on the ballot, it was contended, would constitute an "illegal expenditure" of public money.

District Judges Isaac McDougal of Pocatello, Thomas E. Buckner of Caldwell and James W. Porter of Twin Falls are sitting on cases where the regular judges have been disqualified.

SAVINGS SIGHTED FOR SPUD GROWER

Two Million Dollars at Stake in Fight on Freight Rate

BOISE, Sept. 16 (AP)—If the Idaho public utilities commission makes its compromise with the interstate commerce commission hearing in Idaho Falls Saturday, the state's potato growers stand to save $2,000,000 annually, state experts said.

De Long said the P. U. C. Inter Joint by Oregon and Utah, had complained of the "unreasonable" rates on grain vegetables to all stations from Denver east, both north and south, and on potatoes and onions from Kansas City, Mo., to the Atlantic coast, both north and south, and into eastern Canada.

If the I. C. C. grants new, reduced rates, on the basis of pre-war charges, the saving on an average 32,000 cars of potatoes shipped annually would be around $2,000,000, De Long estimated.

Truck Overload Dispute in Court

A dispute over weight seems to be involved in the case of Alex Schuler, bean hauler, who was arraigned in probate court in Twin Falls yesterday on a misdemeanor charge of driving an overloaded truck and trailer on the highway.

Schuler, represented by S. T. Hamilton, Twin Falls attorney, pleaded not guilty to the charge, and Judge C. A. Bailey set trial for 10 a. m. today.

The Day in Washington

(By The Associated Press)

The nation's first peace-line campaign was put into effect when President Roosevelt signed a proclamation requiring the registration on October 16 of about 16,500,000 men from 21 to 35 years old.

A second counting of national guardmen will go into effect next week following the 40th anniversary and men from 26 states who reported for such service Monday.

The war department announced contracts for airplane, totaling $115,512,227, which it said actually completed the 4,247-plane purchasing program for which funds were provided by congress in the 1933-1940 defense appropriation.

The House elected Sam Rayburn of Texas as speaker to succeed William B. Bankhead, who died Sunday. President Roosevelt attended a state funeral for Bankhead held in the Senate.

Secretary Hays said Wendell Willkie's recent remark about the Alton Roosevelt and the 1934 conference showed the Republican nominee was "careless" because of the history of the last few years.

With the exception of North Dakota, territories have been found in every state in the Union.

defeat its own ends. When there are many birds, they tend to keep down the insects. If sprayed are used for that purpose, and the birds are thereby driven away for lack of food, the birds' anti-insect services are lost along with their songs.

STATE LAW UNIFORMITY
It is hard to believe that the National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws has been in existence half a century. But it celebrated a 50th anniversary last year and announced that its work had brought about the adoption of nearly 600 acts by legislatures which reduced conflicts among the laws of the 48 states.

There are many reasons for the commissioners to do and for the legislatures. A motorist traveling across a number of states is lucky if he escapes arrest in most of them for innocent infringement of traffic laws. Speed limits vary, signals vary, traffic signs vary. And highway regulation is only one branch of state legislation.

Still, if 600 laws have been enacted reducing conflicts, it is possible that 600 more will come in the future and that these "Uniform" States will manage to retain their individuality and sovereignty and yet cooperate in matters in which uniformity would be a blessing to all concerned.

grade and Rome carry a premium ranging from 100 per cent to 1500 per cent in the conversion to the American dollar, depending on the situation in the country.

Since neither country will repurchase its currency, the operation is a gamble that at worst will result in the government of the country being forced to issue an official rate, even if inevitable inflation sets in. The dollar in value must be stable before the U. S. buyers sustain a loss because present purchases are already based on an inflationary basis. That the lira and dinar may not be the worst a Weimar mark at the end of the first world war is a possibility that is not a direct operation to the law and the brave.

Should he become president, Willkie stated, he would not consider it his duty or prerogative to urge a preventive war on the Congress under any circumstances. Willkie's specific resolution from the U. S. senate instructing him to do so.

CONSUMER PROFITS HERE

Today much of the world faces the grim specter of famine. But here in the United States we still have the blessing of plenty.

A Department of Agriculture survey shows that abundant supplies of nearly all foodstuffs will be available for the coming year. Increases in production of wheat, corn, oats are expected to continue. The fresh fruit supply will be slightly above last year, and large wheat and rice crops are anticipated. In the case of most foods, there will be enough to meet all domestic requirements, and to provide surpluses for export.

Other surveys indicate that the demands of war material production in our factories will not seriously dilute production of consumer goods. We may have to do without a few manufactured luxuries as time goes on, but there will be plenty of the necessities.

Our productive facilities are to prove of maximum benefit to the consumer, another factor must enter in—and that factor is the distributor. Abundant supplies are wasted unless the crops can be delivered to the buyer at minimum cost. And efficiency in the factory can be offset by inefficiency and waste in distribution.

But the consumer need not worry. The American distribution machine, like the American productive machine, is the most efficient in the world. Our competitive system, with all kinds of distributors, seeking to deliver each article at the lowest possible price. When you enter a store and purchase you're getting more for your money, all things considered, than the buyer in any other nation.

DELIVERANCE

There was a kick in the message sent recently to the conquered Poles by Hugh Dalton, British minister of economic warfare.

Britain, he said, will call "at a chosen moment" upon all the nations that Adolf Hitler has vanquished, to "rise and greet the armies which will land from England upon the shores of Europe."

It would be hard to find in history a more pathetic statement when you consider the broken chain of nations that Adolf Hitler has vanquished. It would be hard to find in history a more pathetic statement when you consider the broken chain of nations that Adolf Hitler has vanquished.

Even while the fate of England hangs in the balance, and that nation is in the gravest danger, it has been for 600 years, this spokesman, has told the Poles that "the hour of their deliverance is near" and Britain will come to their rescue "when it has drowned and destroyed any Germans who attempt to conquer Poland and has conquered the sea over Germany."

You might have to go back to the old Hebrew prophets to match that.

CONFUSION AT CROSSINGS

The jay-walkers and jay-drivers are having quite an argument. It is a well-established rule that motorists and pedestrians have alternate rights at crossings with changing lights, and only one occasional driver or walker tries to cheat. But there is often confusion and danger at crossings with "blinkers" or with no lights at all.

Burton K. Marsh, director of safety and traffic engineering for the American Automobile Association, was discussing this problem the other day with a national group of state motor vehicle administrators. In such cases the drivers, he explained, had the right of way in the middle of city blocks, while the pedestrians had the right of way in the suburbs. He favored the array of drivers who failed to give way to the pedestrians at unguarded crossings.

That rule sounds fair, but, it is hard to enforce because there is a changing light between the jay-walkers and drivers.

It comes around to a question of courtesy. The courteous driver and the courteous pedestrian generally get along all right. People seldom quarrel in courtesy, may be that is why they apply doorway etiquette to street crossings.

BIRDS AND SPRAYS

Civilization has a clumsy way of stepping on the toes of nature. Many "improvements" turn out to be mistakes. Over-zealous spraying of trees, some authorities suspect, may be one of them.

Thus the Audubon Society of New Jersey issued a questionnaire from Newark's park and shade tree commissioners and other interested persons. Asking whether "bird protectors" are not being destroyed along with "insect enemies" by poison spray.

One well-informed observer replies that a beautiful garden arbor and great shade trees around his home, which used to be frequented by birds, have hardly any now. The wrens are all gone. He suspects that spraying has something to do with it.

He thinks a good deal of such work may

William Walker took time out the other day to call on the girl of his dreams. For a long time they sat silent on a bench by the side of her log cabin; and after a while he spoke to her. William walked closer to her and picked up her hand.

"My dear," he began, "I've got a good clean one here, there, a little bit of a cold, but it's all right. I've got a good clean one here, there, a little bit of a cold, but it's all right. I've got a good clean one here, there, a little bit of a cold, but it's all right."

Glamour Girl
BLOUSES

Such exquisite details, no one will believe these blouses aren't hand-made! The rayon satin blouse has insets of imported Val-type lace... in white only. The long-sleeved, rayon crepe shirt has handsome stitched box pleats... in white, dusty pink, French blue, Hawaiian beige, Dixie clay, red, bay leaf green. Both launder beautifully in LUX.

"BE A GOOD SOLDIER!"

Presenting — Marcellite, a new French creation in which the military influence is clearly seen! The big rakish lapels are patterned after the great coats of men of arms. Its swash-buckling, jauntily draped double-breasted effect, its epaulet shoulders and brave slash pockets are straight from the front lines of fashion. You will like the novel, nubby woven-striped fabric, too.
