YEAR'S TRAININGParting Scenes Poignant as Troops Leave for Encomement

Members of Company E, 116th engineers, and the medical department detachment have today entered the routine that will continue for at least a year at Camp Murray, Fort Lewis, Wash. Leaving Twin Falls early Sunday morning after food and tearful farewells from parents, wives and sweethearts, the newly-inducted engineers arrived at Camp Murray late yesterday afternoon.

After making the trip from this section were members of the 10th cavalry and 10th infantry regiments were picked up on their way.

Similar to those of last month was the national letter left for three-weeks' encomement. Sunday's scenes carried a more serious undertone. Goodbyes that must last for a year or more were exchanged and there were many tearful partings before the troops pulled away.

TESTING AWAITS
NEW FIRE TRUCKFreight Car Doors Remain
Sealed Until Factory
Man Arrives

Sealed doors of the freight car carrying Twin Falls' new fire truck, which arrived yesterday, are today awaiting arrival of a factory representative before the machine can be unloaded and prepared for testing.

After the factory representative completes the duty of "handing over" the truck to the fire department, the truck will be taken to the fire station and the fire department will be in charge of the truck's operation. Although this, which will also be supervised by Police and Fire Commissioner Carl Richey, may be held this week, the exact date has not yet been set, according to Fire Chief L. S. Bartlett.

Because the new truck represents the latest in fire fighting equipment, a number of the chiefs in this section may attend the testing and demonstration.

As soon as the $50,000 machine is ready for service, one of the present trucks will be thoroughly overhauled at the city shops.

CLUB WOMEN AT
IDAHO CONCLAVE

Boise Mayor Praises Federation in Welcome to Delegates

BOISE, Sept. 23.—Seventy-five delegates to the 25th convention of the Idaho State Federation of Women's clubs got a pat on the back today for their initiative in pooling their resources.

Women need to be fortified, Mayor James L. Stratton of Boise told the club members, in a speech well coming them to Boise.

He cited the present European turmoil and asserted "the woman leadership has gone hand in hand with lack of national unity."

Mrs. H. S. Arrington of Peaslee state president, opened the three-day convention.

Other officers present were Mrs. A. J. Snyder of Bingham, fourth vice president; Mrs. Mary J. Smith of St. Maries, recording secretary; Mrs. Harold Finch of Boise, treasurer; Mrs. Hugu Dunning of Wallace, auditor and Mrs. T. H. Baker of Pocatello, corresponding secretary.

Mrs. Alice Johnson of Nampa discussed the child welfare program from the standpoint of the state department of public welfare, stating that hundreds, especially of the fourth vice president, Mrs. Mary J. Smith of St. Maries, recording secretary; Mrs. Harold Finch of Boise, treasurer; Mrs. Hugu Dunning of Wallace, auditor and Mrs. T. H. Baker of Pocatello, corresponding secretary.

County Farm
Folk to Miss
Movie Shows

Girls four or more civic organizations join in program Monday night, residents of the Twin Falls county farm have been forced to forego the pleasure of motion pictures.

Mayor Joe Koehler, who has been providing the county farm management with such motion picture film, said last night that, because a change has been made in the size of reels since present equipment at the farm was purchased, a film has been created, present equipment is built for 1,000-foot reels, while the reels are now available only in 2,000-foot length. Use of the longer reels in the equipment there creates a condition which does not meet with requirements of the film industry.

Mayor Koehler suggested that, if at least four reels, "Tillie Nip" with $50 each, be sent to the county farm, he would be able to obtain the required projection equipment at a reduced rate, so that the elderly residents at the county farm could have motion pictures to look forward to twice weekly.

The Day in Washington

Controversy in a senate-house committee over the excess profits tax bill and a senate dispute over a civil service measure dashed the hopes of administration leaders for an adjournment of Congress by the coming weekend.

The hour passed and sent to the senate legislation carrying $26,724,125 in cash and negotiable securities, including funds to start a $500,000 program of civil and military aid.

A letter by Senator Glass (D-Va.) opposing a third term for president Roosevelt, was made public, but Glass insisted that it would have no effect on his previous announced intention of supporting Roosevelt in the 1940 election.

Secretary Hall, commenting on the passage of the new Foreign Investment Act, said it was "a significant step in the status quo in the Pacific and in the world."

Willkie States His Case:
Wendell L. Willkie's job is to win the voters' ratification on what is going on in Europe and focus it on the domestic issue of the New Deal. The Republican candidate has made a great start toward accomplishment of this goal.

To his opponents' warning against changing horses in the midst of a world crisis, he must make good the reply that midstream may be the very best place for changing from the wrong horse.

On his first tour of the campaign he tackled this job. His method has been to fit President Roosevelt's failure to cure the American depression—the backbone of the domestic scene—into its place in world history, in American history and in Mr. Roosevelt's personal history.

He comes out with the conclusion that the President is a very wrong horse, indeed, and that the sooner America displaces him the better it will be for democracy, here and everywhere.

The Willkie argument goes like this: The failure of the President's New Deal formula for a government-managed recovery has prevented world recovery and thus encouraged Hitlerism. Specifically, in the very beginning, it led the President to "torpedo" the London economic conference, "Which would have stabilized currencies and restored world trade."

The same failure, with recurring efforts to recoup it by the same means, has continued to prompt more of the fatal concentration of authority in the government in the war years. Thus the failure has led on itself and manifested with every passing year, up to the present bid for a third term, more symptoms of the "just trust me" kind of government.

Thus there is no hope in Mr. Roosevelt for a sound prospect, such as democracy's survival. His Presidency in democracy's crisis, now developing in Europe, on which all Americans are turned.

This is what Wendell L. Willkie says. This—and much more—is what the New York Times, largest democratic newspaper in the United States, says, in announcing its support for Willkie.

Mr. Willkie says that for seven and a half years the doctrine of hatred has been preached by the President of the United States and his satellites.

This is true, as everyone knows. New Dealism has spread hatred toward business and industry. It has stirred the hatred of one class toward another. It has developed a political-economic philosophy with a prime objective of class warfare.

Of such has been the technique of the European dictators. Hitler has aroused hatred toward the Jews, toward the citizens of democratic countries and toward everyone who made bold to disagree with his policies. Mussolini likewise has made hatred the keynote of his fascist plan of action.

Though couching his thoughts in smooth terminology, President Roosevelt again preached hatred when he extolled the "virtues" of the extravagant TVA and outlined the anti-industrialism of the new labor relations laws. He implied that all administrators of privately-owned utilities are crooks and that the average industrialist is engaged in a conspiracy to cheat the workman of his just due.

But such is the product of a mind obsessed by hatred.

Citizens should ask, logically and pertinently, whether an atmosphere of hatred produced a sound setting for advancement of national defense, whether America can possibly be united with any degree of effectiveness by a bureaucratic setup which deliberately arrays class against class and constantly questions the motives of those who are at the helm of production.

Mr. Willkie properly offers negative answers to these queries and pleads for a fair-minded, tolerant and generous unification of American life. It is obviously true that hatred can lead only to the negation of democratic principles. Mutual confidence, trust and faith are the backbone of freedom.

Under the American people have a right to demand that dictatorship will be a hypocritical gesture until those qualities are restored at home.

It is already apparent that Mr. Willkie is being increasingly supported in his crusade for the maintenance of America's basic principles. The calm judgment of the people is coming to the fore. Without any doubt whatsoever, this Presidential campaign involves an all-out battle between peace-loving democracy and freedom-producing administration with a minimum of bureaucratic restriction.

That is the paramount issue, and Mr. Willkie is bringing it striking to the attention of his fellow citizens.

The campaign upon which Wendell L. Willkie is embarked is a crusade for democracy to preserve democratic government in the United States, to resist undue and unwarranted Federalism, to safeguard personal liberties, and to save off the oppressive influence of government on the citizenship and the industry of the nation.

A HOMEY ART
Bubble capably though she will (and must) of new fall fashions, the average woman in her heart will not feel autumn's tawny thrill unless she has "put up" a few jars of jelly or tomato catsup. Undoubtedly pleasant to most nostrils is the smell of burning leaves, but aromas unexcelled are those wafting from kitchens where grape juice summers or spiced-off chili sauce sizzles slowly but surely.

Creative work, this "doling up" of sparkling glasses of garnet jelly, heath with summer's sweetness. Bracing as a walk in the woods, this crisp sweet-sour of chopped tomatoes, onions, green peppers and spice.

In these days of stereotyped and cliché, the homey arts that brought the pioneers bounding hungrily indoors from farm or forest to enjoy mother's luscious preserves should not be forgotten. Old homestead ways may one day save America from the stalesness of an over-mechanized civilization. At any rate, it's a tasty gamble that every real American should be willing to take.

Other Points of View
MORE BEEF SUGAR
Action of the Federal Industrial Control in support of an increase of quota of beef sugar should meet with prompt and complete approval of all Americans, both on the farms and in the cities.

Beef sugar has been the salvation of many farmers, livestock raisers and processors for beef sugar is the only product of the beef industry that is not subject to the whims of the market. It is a product that is in constant demand and is a valuable source of income for the farmer.

The increase of quota of beef sugar should be a boon to the farmer and a benefit to the consumer. It will help to stabilize the price of beef sugar and will help to increase the income of the farmer.

DICTIONARY OF AMERICAN history. By Frederick Adams, editor in chief; R. V. Coileman, managing editor. Scribner's: 6 volumes: $60.00. Probably the year's major historical work, this general reference work is the new "Dictionary of American History" which is published today under the editorship of Frederick Adams and R. V. Coileman as managing editor. Five of the six volumes are ready, and the sixth, which contains the index, is in the printer's hands. The library is a stupendous undertaking to have been put together in four years, a miraculously short time in which to assemble a work of this magnitude. It is made up of upwards of 1,000 writers, covering the entire stretch of American history. Covering our history, it must be said, from the modern viewpoint in which matters concerning the social and economic structure are at least regarded as against the traditionalism of the past. The work is very well supplied with cross references. There are frequent articles on broad phases of American history, and these are liberally sprinkled with "qv"; and in addition the alphabetical structure has been taken with the headings, since which a different arrangement has article, without exception a speech or a sermon, and the title of the terms for events, with their preference. Great care must have been taken to make the article on a specific event may have been written by the author who occurs to the reader. Nearly every article is followed by a brief bibliography, and these usually refer to the books and articles in the various libraries instead of to little-known source material.

Although this is a dictionary of American history and not of American literature, the title of the article that at least occasionally it might have been better to include the events of a prominent man's career, scattered through a dozen articles or so. When the index is ready to be used, it should be possible to locate the events of a man's life, and it takes time. There also has been a partial omission of first names and initials, and for a work which is intended to be a source of information, there are a few mistakes.

Under "Boston" there is no article on that city's most famous educational institution, the Boston University, and there are a few other mistakes.

Koller, officers of the association who will take active part in the necessary arrangements are: Leon C. Martin, president; L. L. Luan, vice-president; and Ivan Skinner, secretary-treasurer.

ROBBERY SUSPECT DECLARED GUILTY

Jury Convicts Frank Hartley After Brief Deliberations in First Trial

A district court jury in Twin Falls yesterday deliberated 30 minutes and then returned its verdict finding Frank Hartley guilty of robbing James C. Murphy, Twin Falls suburban grocery owner, of $70.50 at the point of a gun the night of last May 8. District Judge James W. Porter announced sentence will be pronounced at 10 a.m. next Thursday.

No evidence was offered in Hartley's behalf after his attorney, A. J. Myers, appointed by the court, declared in an opening statement that Hartley "couldn't tell what had happened at the grocery store that night because he wasn't there."

State's witnesses, besides the store owner and his wife, Mrs. Ruby Murphy, included four other persons: Joe Ayers, Vermilion Springs; Denny Anderson and Mrs. Dale P. Olson, some of whom were in the store when the robbery occurred; and two police officers, Chief Paul Peterson and Officer W. Gillette and Patrolman Lee McCracken.

Ray D. Ace, assistant prosecuting attorney, presented the state's case. Hartley has been held in the county jail since his arrest shortly after the robbery.

The trial which was completed in the one day, was the first on the criminal calendar for the current district court term in Twin Falls.

Set for trial beginning today is one of two felony charges against Lyle Wilkins, 30-year-old Boreas Negro rancher, nephew of attacking a Rosemont woman after setting fire to her residence. Accused both of rape and of arson, the first charge is to be prosecuted today.

Members of the jury in yesterday's robbery trial were H. L. Cannon, Ted Allen, Oliver W. Johnson, Jack Gray, Victor Nigler, Everett Bonar, A. E. Pickett, Russell McCannell, R. L. Jenkins, F. W. Hudson, C. H. McFarland and Ernest Egan.

Five Escape As Car Leaves Road

Slight scratches and contusions sustained by one passenger were the only injuries, resulting from an automobile accident Sunday night when a machine driven by Edward Evans, 19, route one, Twin Falls, left the road on a curve. The accident occurred on the Sugar factory road between Twin Falls and the sugar beet plant, according to state police.

Barbara Munick sustained the minor injuries, but three other occupants, besides the driver, were not injured. The car hurtled across a culvert, took out a portion of fence and landed in a ravine's mud.

Damage was set at about $250.

Two Women Ask Divorce Decrees

Two women started divorce suits in district court in Twin Falls yesterday.

Alleging non-support, Mrs. Wilma Barry, and for divorce from Alvin Barry, to whom "he was married in Idaho City, April 25, 1935, W. L. Dunn of Twin Falls is her attorney.

Mrs. Mable Brown said for divorce from Paul Brown, alleging extreme cruelty and desertion commencing since Feb. 1932. The matter took place in Butte, Sept. 13, 1931. O. C. Hall of Twin Falls is the petitioner's attorney.

There are no children, and community property is involved in either case.

Scranton CRAFTSPUN CURTAINS

Only $1.98 AND UP

"Why, it's different room!" friends will say after you've put up Scranton's new lace curtains at the windows. Such inexpensive "decorating," too, with Scranton's Craftsman Curtains. They'll wear practically forever, because ONLY double- and triple-ply threads go in them—they look extravagantly fine. And every thread is twisted in place to prevent slipping. Up they go... no sewing's necessary! Hems are perfectly matched. Ask to see the new designs today.
